FORMER SPEAKER DAVID B. HENDERSON PASSES AWAY

Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 26.—Former Speaker David B. Henderson of the National House of Representatives died at 2 o'clock last afternoon at the Mercy Hospital of paresis, which attacked him nine months ago. He began to sink Friday afternoon, rallied Saturday morning, in the afternoon lapsed into unconsciousness and failed rapidly until the end came. All of his family except a son in California were at his bedside, but Col. Henderson had been unable to recognize anyone but his wife since a week ago, except on Friday, when he partly regained his mental faculties. Col. Henderson was stricken with paresis last May and his condition grew so grave that he was removed to a hospital in September. His condition remained practically unchanged except for the usual progress of such a disease until a week ago last Friday. He suffered another stroke which resulted in total blindness. The former speaker failed rapidly physically and mentally until Friday, when his mental powers returned for a few hours, followed by a relapse which ended in his death. The funeral will be held next Thursday. Former Congressman George D. Perkins of Sioux City will deliver an eulogy. The body is to lie in state on Thursday at the Church.

BILL IS PROJECTED TO ATTACH I. T. TO OKLAHOMA

Washington, Feb. 26.—A bill will be introduced in the house during the week having as its purpose the extending of the boundary lines of Oklahoma around Indian Territory. Congressman Curtis of Kansas will, in all probability, introduce the bill. In addition to making Indian Territory a part of Oklahoma, the bill provides for changing the recording districts of the Indian Territory into counties and authorizes Governor Frantz to fill all vacancies temporarily. It is said the bill will make the ninety-seven degree longitude the dividing line between the judicial districts, throwing the Osage nation into the present Indian Territory jurisdiction and part of the Chickasha district into the Oklahoma jurisdiction. The secretary of the interior and the senate committee on Indian affairs are at loggerheads over the proposition to extend the existence of the tribal governments for another year.

A Missionary Rally.

At the Christian church Sunday evening there was held a missionary rally. The services consisted of some excellent addresses by laymen of the church on various features of the missionary work, interspersed with beautiful song selections and readings. The program was such as both to delight the audience and to arouse an active interest in carrying "The beautiful story" to the benighted, unchristianized peoples. The pastor shows tactful generalship in harnessing the laity for church work, making them realize that their religious duties include more than simply sitting as hearers of the word.

THE WHEELER MEMORIAL SERVICE AN IMPRESSIVE ONE

Pursuant to arrangements, the Confederate Veterans, with the members of the Grand Army Post, the Sons and Daughters of Confederate Veterans and the Veterans of the Spanish American war, met at the Presbyterian Church in Ada, I. T., on Sunday, Feb. 25th, where Memorial services were conducted in behalf of the late Gen. Joseph Wheeler of Alabama. The services were conducted by Rev. Jno. A. Williams, who first delivered a very interesting address in behalf of the Veterans of the war between the States—both the Gray and the Blue—after which an appropriate address was made by Mr. T. P. Holt, representing the Sons of Confederate Veterans. Mr. Joel Terrell, who had been selected to speak in behalf of the Spanish American War Veterans, not being present, the Rev. Mr. Williams and others, seeing Mr. Otis B. Weaver present and knowing that he had enlisted in the United States service during the Spanish American war, called on him for a talk, to which request he reluctantly responded in a most appropriate and feeling manner, showing much emotion when he alluded to Gen. Wheeler and his deceased son, who was an intimate friend of Mr. Weaver. After this, the old soldiers were invited to speak of the deceased, which was responded to by Messrs. Doss, Wood and Weaver, with appropriate remarks, after which the Rev. Jno. A. Williams, who is a great favorite with the old soldiers, delivered a most excellent memorial sermon.

J. P. Wood read the last order of General Wheeler to his old command after the surrender, which was much appreciated.

The Daughters of the Confederate Veterans did their part well by rendering excellent music for the occasion.

After the services were over at the church, the Wm. L. Byrd Camp of United Confederate Veterans passed the following resolution:

Resolved, First, That the members of the Wm. L. Byrd Camp of United Confederate Veterans hereby tender their sincere thanks to Rev. Jno. A. Williams for the most excellent manner in which he conducted the memorial services held this day for Gen. Joseph Wheeler, and for the use of the church for the same.

Resolved, Second, That the thanks of this Camp are extended to Messrs. T. P. Holt, Otis B. Weaver, J. M. Doss and J. P. Wood for the appropriate addresses delivered by them upon this occasion, and to the Daughters of the Confederate Veterans for the excellent music furnished for the occasion.

Resolved, Third, That the newspapers of Ada be requested to publish these proceedings.

J. M. Doss,
S. H. Hargis,
J. P. Wood,
Committee.

BRING IN YOUR WANTS.

Beginning Saturday, March 3, and continuing until further notice, the Evening News will print FREE one three line Want ad for each of its subscribers. No matter what you have for sale, exchange or trade (excepting real estate) the News will print it free for you on that day. If you want to rent a house, a piano, sell a horse or cow, or if your dog has gone astray, the quickest way to get action is by a Want ad in this paper, and we are going to prove it to you to your entire satisfaction. No more than fifteen words, initials or numbers will be accepted on this proposition and copy must be in this office not later than Saturday noon. Write plain and make your Want to the point, and we will do the rest. Note these conditions as they will not appear again.

AN OFFICIAL PURGING PLANNED FOR TERRITORY

Washington, Feb. 26.—According to the stories emanating from the White House, a mess of civic corruption on the part of republican office holders in Indian Territory is to be served to the public next month. It is said that there will be disclosures of crookedness on the part of carpet baggers and others who have found lodgement in the territory in connection with the administration of the affairs of the five civilized tribes. Secretary Hitchcock, who for a long time has been apparently hopelessly blind, has finally had his official sight restored and has permitted it to become known that he has made discoveries of official puerilities in Indian Territory and here in Washington that are simply startling. At the White House it is stated that the president himself outlined the investigation and instructed the secretary of the interior how to proceed in order to elicit the facts desired. A detailed report on this salacious subject is now being prepared by the department of the interior for Attorney General Moody, who, it is reported, will order a series of prosecutions that, like the postal scandal, will also hit in high places.

Ardmoreites Protest.

Ardmore, I. T., Feb. 23.—Many protests against certain provisions in the Curtis bill relating to the disposition of Indian lands belonging to the Chickasaw and Choctaw were sent to Washington today. The provision allowing freedmen to purchase land at its appraised value is especially displeasing to land interests.

WANT NO MORE THAN WE DESERVE.

A special in the Dallas News reads as follows:
"Smithville, Tex. 22.—S. M. Halmark, formerly of Jeddo, this county, a farmer, about 50 years of age, was shot at Ada, I. T., Monday and died Tuesday afternoon. His remains will be forwarded here for burial."

The fact is the poor man was seized with an epileptic fit on the street, was cared for faithfully by the officials, but gradually sank until death came in three days. Ada's fair reputation suffers enough stigma from true stories of sanguinary happenings hereabouts, and she does not relish such false and distorted reports, touching her life and activities.

The big Kentuckians' Home-coming, so extensively advertised for next summer, should not be confused with the proverbial Kentucky home coming at four o'clock in the morning.

The Muskogee Times and Muskogee Democrat having consolidated and hyphenated themselves, the new organ is sure to be an eminent success both financially and politically.

"To the last moment of his breath,
On hope the wretch relies;
And e'en the pang preceding death
Bids expectation rise."

—Statehood Ode.

A TRAVELING man said he liked to come to Ada, because it is such a clean, gentlemanly town. In his opinion the absence of rowdyism and indecent sights and sounds is quite noticeable, and is a high testimonial to the superior citizenship of Ada. And, he adds, this opinion is shared by the bulk of the traveling public. Ada is proud to bear such an enviable reputation.

WOMAN'S vanity is the target for many an unjust taunt from man. It is announced that a German statistician has been calculating what part of a woman's life is spent before her mirror. He begins with six years and ends with sixty, and makes the time consumed in all the intervening periods 7,000 hours, or about ten months of life. So it is seen the figures vindicate her. Why, she doesn't average a minute before the glass out of the hour.

INCENDIARY FLAMES CONSUME BIG HAY BARN

Mr. E. W. Hardin has received advice of a fire at Owl giving the following details:

About 10 o'clock Saturday night fire broke out in the large hay barn of Lee Cross at the town of Owl. The extent of loss is not known. The hay was protected by $2,000 insurance and barn by $650.

The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin. About the time it was discovered a man was seen running across the railroad track near the barn. Parties at Owl phoned to Coalgate officials, who intercepted a south-bound freight train at the Choctaw crossing. One white man and two negroes got off there and were promptly arrested and locked up at Coalgate. The white man has been identified as the party seen running near the burning barn.

Also several hundred dollars worth of implements, stored in the building, were consumed. It is thought the loss may reach $4,500.

TIDAL WAVE DESTROYS TWO THOUSAND LIVES

Buena Ventura, Colombia, Feb. 26.—An earthquake occurred at 10:35 Sunday morning. It was of thirty-one seconds' duration. It was seven minutes south by north in movement. Buena Ventura was considerably shaken. Minor damage resulted.

The people were almost panic-stricken, kneeling, weeping and praying. Clocks were stopped and cables broken in places.

The tidal was inconsequential here, but reports from the coast, inclusive of about fifty leagues south, state that 2,000 were killed by falling houses or drowned by the waves. Whole families were lost. Sailing vessels encountered hundreds of corpses and a quantity of dead fish.

Many small settlements were swept away. Damage at Tumaco by the earthquake and wave was greater than here, but few lives were lost.

LUNCHES WITHOUT PIE.

Some Delicious and Nutritious Sandwiches and Light Desserts Best —Heavy Foods Objectionable.

Sandwiches may well form the foundation of a well balanced cold lunch and a variety of fillings may be used. Any carefully cooked cold meat may be used, although pork and veal, being the hardest of all meats to digest, are objectionable, especially for children. Every housewife should strive to excel in making fine quality bread, biscuits, muffins, etc. Bread for sandwiches should be thinly sliced.

Small loaves of biscuit dough or of yeast bread may be baked in corn cans, the small round slices being especially desirable for sandwiches. Brown bread sandwiches with filling of finely mashed, well seasoned baked beans are very nice, and should find a place in the lunch basket at least once a week. Meat for filling should be run through a chopper, or chopped very finely by hand, moistened with stock or sweet cream and carefully seasoned with salt, and a very little pepper is desired. Eggs placed in boiling water and kept hot, not boiling, for 20 minutes, then mashed with a fork, seasoned, and butter added to make a smooth paste are a delicious filling, also celery, chopped or sliced, and sprinkled with salt.

Nuts, especially peanuts, run through the chopper and simply moistened with butter form another kind sure to delight the children. This may be prepared and kept on hand in glass jars in cold weather. Seeded (not seedless) raisins washed thoroughly and run through the ever useful chopper, then placed on oil paper in a pan with perforated bottom and placed over a kettle of boiling water, with the pan tightly covered, and allowed to steam ten minutes, then put in glass jars will keep indefinitely and are always ready to spread between bread, biscuits or crackers with a piece of cheese, and most effectually takes the place of pie. Dates and figs are also nice used in the same way.

Dainty cup puddings of rice, tapioca, custard and squash or pumpkin prepared the same as for pies may be often baked with a large one for the table, making little extra work, and will be appreciated. The simplest water or cream sponge cake may be given occasionally and feed as an especial treat. Raw or nicely baked apples and a bottle of milk or cocoa are nice additions to the lunch basket.

The lunch should be put up daintily, each kind of food wrapped separately in oiled or buttered paper and a paper napkin provided. The child who is given simple, easily digested food will do his school work with far greater ease than one given a rich complicated diet that draws the blood from the brain to assist the overtaxed digestive organs in their laborious work. Wrong living is responsible for many a dull pupil, and thinking mothers everywhere are awakening to the fact.—Orange Judd Farmer.

BREADS AND BISCUITS.

A Welcome Change from Wheat Bread
Is the Occasional Use of Rye and Boston-Brown.

Rye Bread.

Put two quarts rye flour into a stone jar; stir into it one cup yeast (or one cake, dissolved in water), two teaspoonfuls salt, and enough water to moisten well; let rise over night in warm place; in the morning stir it down well; do not add more flour, but put into well-buttered pans as soon as light. Bake in slow oven.

Boston-Brown Bread.

Sift together three cups cornmeal, two cups rye flour and one cup wheat flour; mix three cups sour milk and one cup New Orleans molasses, two even teaspoonfuls salt, and 1½ teaspoonfuls soda, the soda having been dissolved in a little warm water. While mixture is effervescing, pour it into the flour, beating until smooth. Grease a pudding boiler (or one-pound baking powder cans), pour in the batter, filling only to within two inches of the top; cover closely and place in a kettle of boiling water; let steam four or five hours.

Cream Biscuit.

Mix two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder with four cups flour and one level teaspoonful of salt; add

SPORT AND ADVENTURE

BITTEN BY A SHARK.

Naval surgeons have some curious cases to deal with on board Uncle Sam's warships. Assistant Surgeon F. M. Munson has made a report to the Navy Department which ought to settle the long-disputed controversy as to the man-eating propensities of sharks. "On November 2, 1904," says he, "a boatswain's mate of the Piscataqua, then lying in the inner harbor of Obongapo, P. I., while bathing from the side of the ship, was bitten on the foot by a shark. The man had a good view of the shark and there can be no doubt as to the identity of the species of fish.

"The two are-shaped bites, one on the dorsal and one on the plantar surface near the toes, showed unmistakably the marks of three rows of teeth in each lacerated wound. On the dorsum the skin was torn from the underlying tissues for two inches; two tendons and several branches of the dorsalis pedis artery were severed. One of the tarsal bones was crushed into small fragments. On the plantar surface the thick fascia was torn away about one inch. As soon as the man was lifted out of the water an aseptic dressing was applied by the hospital apprentice and the medical officers were sent for.

"As the wound was bleeding profusely, a tourniquet was applied and the man immediately taken ashore and placed upon the operating table; the fragments of bone were removed, the arteries ligated and tendons sutured; the fascia on the plantar and the skin on both surfaces sutured, through and through drainage being secured by a rubber drainage tube left in the wound. The man was sent to the naval hospital at Cavite the following day, and recovered, some stiffness of the foot remaining."—Washington Star.

KNEW HIS OWN WORTH.

In one of the early editions of Murray's Guide to Switzerland it was stated that scarcely anybody had ascended the mountains, and those who had were chiefly of unsound mind. Ideas have altered since then, and the climber nowadays has to be a healthy-minded mortal of at least ordinary intelligence; although a writer in Outing declares that the secret is successful and skillful use of the feet.

The tyro at mountain-climbing proclaims himself at once by his inability to make progress where handholds are scarce. The hands should, as a rule, be used only as anchors, and the upward progress made by simply stepping upward on any ledges that are available. It is a very common occurrence in the Alps to meet a party that includes an incapable amateur who has lost all power in his arms, and has actually to be pushed, dangled and almost carried down the rocks because his arms have given out through lack of knowledge in using them.

Last year on Mont Blanc I witnessed a curious accident which illustrates the consequences of carelessness. We were following downward behind a party composed of two guides and a stout German climber who objected to having the rope tied about his waist.

At one point we were dismayed to see the amateur vanish through the apparently level surface of the snow, leaving the empty loop of the rope dangling down the hole.

We rushed to the edge of the crevasse, and a glance down into its black, icy depths showed the serious nature of the accident. The crevasse was fully 200 feet deep, and our ropes were of no use for a rescue; besides, as no answer came to our calls, we decided that the unfortunate climber had paid the penalty of his foolishness.

Some of us ran down to the Grands-Mulets and brought up a number of guides carrying a long, strong rope and the wherewithal to carry the body down to the valley.

We lowered the guide into the depths of the glacier, and judge of our surprise when we heard voices far below. Our wonder was still further increased when the guide came up and said that the stout German was sitting at the bottom of the crevasse, smoking a pipe. Luckily, he had fallen on a bed of soft snow, and his only serious damage was a broken leg.

He absolutely refused to be pulled up until a bargain had been struck as to the cost of the rescue.

SAVED BY A BABY.

In 1895 the difficulties between the Chinese and Japanese made the lot of missionaries in China extremely dangerous. They recognized the serious consequences of a general uprising of the Chinese. In "The Tragedy of Pao-tungfu" there is a letter from an American woman telling how a party of Chinese soldiers were checked when they came rushing toward her house.

A week ago a great crowd of Chinese soldiers came to the compound, about fifteen rods from her. They caused great disturbance among the Chinese servants and others. The racket about the place was something terrible.

Mr. Roberts did what he could to keep them quiet. Dr. Noble soon came, and they two worked all the afternoon, trying to entertain these men by answering their questions and showing them round. They broke into the cellars, but did not break into the houses, although they pushed on the doors and wanted to get in badly; but the gentlemen told them there was only a woman inside, and it was not proper for them to go in. To this they finally agreed, for the Chinese are very particular about such things.

I soon saw them coming toward the house like a lot of hounds on the track of some prey. They came to the windows and began looking in, but did not try the doors.

I saw some faces at one window which did not look very bad, so I sat down at the window with Baby Paul. He immediately reached out his little arms to them, and laughed, delighted to see so many faces. They began to smile and ask questions. I asked them where they were from and the answered me. They thought Paul would be cold, dressed in white. So I showed them that he had fanned on under, et cetera, and they seemed satisfied.

They finally left. You can imagine my relief.

CONQUERING A GRIZZLY.

Nearly all old Californians, says the author of "Early Days in California," have heard of "Mountain Charley," who lived in the Santa Cruz mountains, where he hunted bear and deer. Of his adventures, many of which were remarkable, there is none stranger than his fight with a grizzly.

One morning he started out with his gun. He had gone but a short distance when he found himself face to face with a grizzly. The bear was sitting on his haunches reaching for acorns when Charley came upon him. The hunter tried to bring his rifle up, but being at such close quarters, the bear disarmed him by striking the weapon with its paw and knocking the weapon out of his hands. At the same time he embraced Charley.

Both fell to the ground. Being on a hillside, they rolled over and over until they reached the ravine below, when the bear loosened its hold, yet did not seem inclined to give up the fight.

Charley realized that his only chance was to "wind" the bear by striking him with his fist over the heart. He landed the blow as near the region as possible. He struck first with one fist and then with the other in rapid succession when he found the bear weakening.

By this time they were close to the embankment of the creek. The bear had lost no time in getting in his scratches and bites. It had made one wound over the hunter's forehead and down the cheek to the bone, and had torn one of his eyes from the socket. It had also fastened its teeth in the man's left arm, and made an ugly wound there.

With a desperate lunge Charley shoved the bear over the embankment into the water. Then, too weak to stand, he fell exhausted upon the ground. The bear was apparently in the same condition. It waded to the opposite bank and lay down.

At last the bear rose to its feet and walked up the stream, frequently stopping and looking back, as if hesitating whether or not to renew the fight. Going at a slow pace, it finally disappeared.

When Mountain Charley thought he could move with safety, he crawled to the stream and drank a little water, then washed the blood from his face, pushed the eye back into the socket, and crawled to his home. He was taken to San Jose for medical treatment. The bones of one arm were broken. Several months passed before he recovered. His eye was not destroyed, but his face was so disfigured that his friends hardly knew him. Not discouraged by this terrible experience, however, he continued to hunt until game became scarce.

SLEEPING WITH SNAKES.

My present boa always sleeps in my bed room on my feet. He is perfectly clean, lies still and very seldom disturbs me; occasionally he crawls to my face to lick it. I frequently take a python to bed, but at present she is timid, and if she cannot find my feet crawls out of the bed and curls herself on the floor.

I do not myself believe that any python or boa is savage, but they are dreadfully timid, especially from the ill-treatment they receive when first caught and the misery and terror they endure on the voyage. There is another thing. They have no eyelids, and being suddenly uncovered and dragged forth to the light suffer from the glare very acutely. It is best, therefore, to hide their heads in your hand or under your coat. Handle them often and give them water, pressing their heads gently into it.

I feed my boas frequently from my hand, but the last time I offered a python a guinea pig the prey escaped and the python took in the whole of my hand instead. He soon discovered his mistake and was greatly distressed, rubbed his head against my hand and seemed to fear some sort of punishment.

Since that time I have had great difficulty in persuading him to eat unless I nurse him or take him to bed, when he will lie the whole night with his head in my hand.—From a letter by Dr. Mann, in "My Strange Pets," by Richard Bell.

Mirrors in Photography.

In this age of publicity, when many society women are glad to furnish photographs for use in print, it is little wonder they are anxious to look their prettiest when being "taken." One of the latest European fads is to pose with a hand glass. French women say "that fascinating expression" is obtained only by such a method, and the idea is being received well by photographers throughout Europe. Sometimes the mirror is held for fifteen or twenty minutes before the woman is satisfied that others will see her as she sees herself. When the right expression does come she drops the mirror, and the photographer does the rest.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS

BLISTERING IN LINEN.

To prevent blistering in linen, which is almost always due to bad starching, but occasionally to ironing the articles when too wet, each article must be well starched through, and when about to iron it, it must be dampened evenly, but not wet. Collars and cuffs that have to be turned down should be fixed in the proper shape immediately after each one is ironed, for then the starch is still flexible.

SELECTING AND COOKING FISH.

Fish should enter into the diet of both healthy people and invalids. Its chief disadvantage for folks in good health is that it is not satisfying. This is largely owing to the great amount of water that it contains.

It is an agreeable change from meat. Any white fish is easily digested. To be really good and wholesome fish should not only be strictly fresh, but in season. It should no more be eaten out of season than game, says the Boston Traveler.

Care should be taken also that the fish is mature, so that the flavor of the meat may be at its best. After spawning it makes a very poor diet. The flesh is then soft and of a bluish color and after it is cooked it has not the flakiness that characterizes good fish. Fish must be perfectly fresh, otherwise serious results may follow after eating it. It deteriorates more quickly than most food and consequently the first essential is freshness. If it is at all "wooly" its flavor is gone and the meat is insipid.

CLEANING FEATHERS.

Prepare sufficient lime water for the quantity of feathers you have to clean, in the following manner: Mix thoroughly one pound of quick lime in each gallon of water required and let it stand until all the undissolved lime is precipitated as a fine powder to the bottom of the tub or pan, whereupon pour off the clear liquor for use.

Now, having put the feathers in a clean tub, pour the lime water on them and stir them well in it until they all sink to the bottom, by which time there should be enough lime water to cover them to a depth of three inches. Let them stand in this three or four days, then take them out, drain them in a sieve, and afterwards wash and rinse them well in clean water. Dry them on nets having about the same mesh as a cabbage net; shake the net occasionally and those feathers that are dry will fall through. When they are all dry, beat them well to get rid of the dust.

RECIPES

Orange Punch—Boil one pound of sugar and one pint of water with the grated yellow rind of one orange for five minutes. Take from the fire and strain; add the juice of three oranges and two lemons and set aside to cool. When ready to use, add a pint of shaved ice and a quart of water.

Pineapple Ice Cream—Three pints of cream, one pint milk, two ripe pineapples, with two pounds of sugar; peel and slice the pineapples, cover them with sugar and let stand about three hours; then chop the fruit into the syrup formed and strain through a fine sieve; beat into the cream and freeze. Some of the fruit can be cut in small pieces and stirred into the cream. Peach ice cream is made in the same way.

Mushrooms a la Provencale—This recipe has just been sent me by a friend who is spending a year in an old French chateau studying French customs. "The Provencale cooks," she says, "first blanch the mushrooms in boiling water, to which a teaspoonful of vinegar has been added. Remove and let them lie for an hour in a bath of oil, salt, pepper and a pinch of garlic. Then take out the mushrooms and set the saucepan over the fire to heat the oil. When very hot add the mushrooms with a little minced parsley. Toss the mushrooms while cooking, then take up, drain, squeeze over them the juice of a lemon and serve with quarters of lemon, garnishing the dish on which they are served."—New York Evening Telegram.

Virginia Barbecued Ham—Cut raw ham in thin slices and soak in scalding water one-half hour. Take them out and lay them in a frying pan. Pepper each slice and spread on one-fourth teaspoonful of made mustard. Fry in vinegar, one-half teaspoonful to each slice, turning often. A delicious breakfast dish with pork is scrapple. Take the head, heart and any lean scraps of pork and boil until the flesh slips from the bones. Remove all fat, gristle and bones, and chop fine. When cold remove the fat from the surface of the liquor in which the meat was boiled and return to the fire. As soon as it boils put on the chopped meat and pepper and salt to taste. Allow it to come to a boil again and thicken with cornmeal, letting the meal slip through the fingers slowly to prevent lumps. Cook an hour, stirring very often, and then push back on the stove to boil gently for another hour. Mold in a shallow, square pan, and when cold fry in slices, the same as you do cold mush.

THE MERRY SIDE OF LIFE

GUESSING.

A man will struggle hard and long to gain what he esteems success. He wins it; feels that he was wrong. And starts in on another guess.

—Boston Courier.

MONEY IN IT.

Knicker—"Strange they didn't name the baby after its rich uncle." Bocker—"No; he looked at it, and said he'd give them $10,000 not to."—Harper's Bazaar.

A SURE CURE.

Puffenburger—"I'd give anything to know how you managed to reduce your weight." Thinow—"I have made it impossible to get much to eat, by joining an Anti-Tipping Society."—Brooklyn Life.

IN HONOR BOUND.

"I ain't dirty by choice, ma'am," the hobo explained. "I'm bound by honor. I wrote a testimonial for a soapmaker once and promised ter use no other." "Well, why don't you use that?" demanded Mrs. Goodley. "Because, ma'am, dat firm failed in 1887."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A MAIDEN PHILOSOPHER.

"I suppose you will marry when you grow up," said the visitor, pleasantly. "No," replied the thoughtful little girl, innocently. "Mamma says papa is more care than the children, so I guess the care of my children will be enough for me without the care of a husband."—Chicago Journal.

A BAD BREAK.

"My husband could never write any poetry unless he was smoking," said the one in black. "I believe your husband is dead," said the man, with a far-off look. "Yes, he is." "Do you suppose he is writing any poetry now?"—Yonkers Statesman.

OLD FRIENDS.

The Wife—"What luck?" The Husband (wearily)—"None whatever." The Wife—"Were there no servants in the intelligence office?" The Husband (sadly)—"Lots of them, but they had all worked for us before."—Woman's Home Companion.

FRENZIED FINANCE.

"I made money to-day all right. I sold our piano for $150." "Made money? Why, you told me it cost you $350." "I know, but I never paid for it."—New York Evening Mail.

THE CHUGS.

Mrs. Chugwater—"This paper says the passengers escaped on a raft. How could they make a raft at sea?" Mr. Chugwater—"They could use the ship's log, couldn't they? Why don't you use your own reasoning faculties once in a while?"—Chicago Tribune.

THE CENSURER.

"I heard you swearing at an awful rate this morning. What was the matter?" said the first flat dweller. "Why, I was mad at that coal man for swearing so at the poor horse he was trying to back into the court," explained the other, with flashing eyes. "It was awful!"—Detroit Free Press.

CIRCULATED SOME.

"Have you a library in your town?" asked the New York man. "Oh, yes," replied the Westerner. "A circulating one?" "Well, it wasn't intended for that sort of a library, but we had two or three cyclones out our way that circulated it considerably."—Yonkers Statesman.

MORE TO THE POINT.

"Ef yer real interested," said Deacon Skluner, "I'll tell ye what I want fur that horse." "Oh, I wouldn't be interested in knowin' that," replied Farmer Shrupe. "No?" "No; but I wouldn't mind knowin' what ye'd take."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

AS REVISED.

"A horse! A horse!" exclaimed King Richard. "My kingdom for a horse!" "There isn't one in the building, your Majesty," said one of the supes behind the scenes in a husky, agonized, stage whisper. "Society is using all of 'em for a horse show!" Realizing his mistake, he called for an automobile, but it was too late. A moment more and Richmond was upon him.—Chicago Tribune.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

HATPIN HOLDERS.

In these days of many hatpins the hatpin holder has become a necessary adjunct to the well-appointed bureau. They are made now as one of the toilet set, comprising brush, comb, mirror, powder box, tray, etc., or may be had separately in very pretty designs. An ingenious substitute for the silver holder, and one in reach of every girl, is a tall glass bottle with a mouth wide enough to hold several pins comfortably. Nearly everybody has a pretty bottle or two put away, and one of these, with a bow on the neck or a little picture pasted on the side, will hold the hatpins all right until Christmas, when one of the new silver holders will probably appear.

A WOMAN, TOO.

A young woman who was spending the evening with the family of Lord Coleridge, the eminent English jurist, was about to start for her home at 10 o'clock when he offered to accompany her. She, with the respect due to his age, and with the fearlessness of youth, due to ignorance of the dangers surrounding young women, said: "I thank you, but I do not want to trouble you. Cannot the maid accompany me?" His answer showed the respect in which he held all women. He said: "My dear, the maid is a woman also." If all men were as truly courteous there would be no complaint on the part of women that they do not receive the treatment they should receive from the opposite sex.—New York Tribune.

OBSERVE HOME ANNIVERSARIES.

The happiest households are that that do not let die out the sentiment connected with various anniversaries. Although gift-giving or recognition of such events in a suitable way may be out of the question owing to the straitened circumstances of those "within the gates," there can yet be a little air of festivity when mother's or father's birthday comes round, or some wedding anniversary is to be celebrated. An extra dish, a little bunch of flowers, or some special music prepared for the occasion, will show the kindly spirit and the loving remembrance that count for more than the money value of any gift. As the children grow up, if these festivals are encouraged, they will have much to look forward to and much more to remember in the years to come when they go out to do battle with the world and find that sentiment is crushed under foot and affection is regarded only as a side issue.

CHILDREN'S PARTY SUPPERS.

The most charming thing about any meal is a surprise connected with it, and in this supper there are several, of a simple character, easily prepared and intended for the smallest children: Clam broth in cups with whipped cream.

Animal crackers.

Creamed chicken; rolled sandwiches.

Small cups of cocoa.

Paper roses with plain ice cream concealed in them; little cakes.

Put the chicken into small square boxes and covers and glue a tiny downy chicken on the cover of each. Serve the sandwiches tied with ribbons, and the cocoa in little after-dinner coffee-cups with little spoons. Get some large paper roses and remove the centres, fitting a little paper cup in each, and laying the flat centre on again when it is served; pass the plates with the little lighted cakes with this. —Harper's Bazar.

SAVE TISSUE PAPER.

The tissue paper in which parcels are wrapped should never be thrown away, but smoothed out and laid away in a drawer for future use.

A small pad of tissue paper sprinkled with methylated spirit will give a brilliant polish to mirrors, picture glasses and crystal. The pad, used without the spirit, is excellent for burnishing steel, rubbing grease spots off furniture, polishing silver, etc.

For packing glass, china and ornaments a roll of tissue paper is invaluable, says Home Notes.

When packing hats a wisp of tissue paper should be twisted around all upstanding ends of ribbon, ostrys and wings to prevent crushing. Dress and blouse sleeves should be stuffed with soft paper, and a sheet of it placed between the folds.

Silk handkerchiefs, ribbons and lace should all be ironed between a layer of tissue paper, and the latter is a fine polisher for steel buckles and hatpins.

DRESS FOR THEMSELVES.

Women do not dress to attract the admiration of men; vanity, I am afraid, is the author of this suggestion, writes a correspondent of the London Daily News. Neither is it to excite the envy of women. Why do men everywhere fall so easily into this mean estimate of our sex?

God has planted, I believe, a true instinct into all true women's natures—perhaps partly on account, it may be, of their very subtle and universal influence as mother, wife, sister, friend—not only to be attractive, but to appear so.

We could count numberless instances to support this theory. The world is dark and cold enough, our eyes refuse to be satisfied with garments of black and brown, or even chocolate or coffee colored; these are quite as, and more, expensive than the sweet, fresh toilets made lovely by rainbow-tinted flowers and ribbons that rejoice the eye of the true artist.

Surely it was not as a coquette to inspire the admiration of men that the woman whose price was above all rubies whose husband trusted in her, and in whose tongue was the law of kindness, clothed herself in coverings of tapestry, silk and purple. I think rather her raiment matched the innate dignity and beauty of her character. And when I see the pretty garments around me I like to feel that they are most often the outcome of sunny, womanly natures, whose desire is to please and to be pleased.—Manchester Union.

A WOMAN PATENT ATTORNEY.

The experience of Miss Florence King, of Chicago, patent attorney, shows that the "self-made woman" has arrived along with the "self-made man," of whom America has long been proud. She handles the most intricate inventions and complicated cases, and practices in the Supreme Court of the United States. She became famous when she won the case of Mrs. Hamilton Rogers against a great corporation, a case which men attorneys had repeatedly refused to touch as hopeless. She was born in a log cabin, left an orphan at five, went to district school, earned her first money in the kitchen at $1.25 a week, worked her own way through college, started business life as a stenographer, studied law, specialized in patent law, and after various other successes was admitted to the Supreme Court in 1903. She took a course in mechanical and electrical engineering at Armour Institute, and can pass, it is said, expert opinion on mechanical inventions before presenting them at the Patent Office.

STYLES IN NECKWEAR.

Scarfs of lace and printed chiffon for evening wear are so closely allied to neckwear that they must be mentioned with it and the newest come in frilled and pleated effects that are extremely pretty. Crepe de Chine is employed for the making of some dainty stocks and ties, both in white and colors, and medallions and frills of lace lend a touch of ornamentation. In pastel colorings these collars are dainty and charming. In tailored neckwear a fancy is observable for long tab ends, and whether of wash material or of silk this elongated effect is evidenced. Taffeta embroidered in colors and in black and white designs is a favored material for these fancy tailored stocks, and then there are the handkerchief ties in bright tints and Oriental colorings which are exceedingly smart for autumn or winter wear with a plain shirt waist, whether of linen or heavier fabric. The trim little turnover collar with embroidered edge and worn with a narrow silk or satin tie is as much in style as ever. There is a neat air about this collar that is very fetching. Of course, the linen collar for wear with strictly tailored waists is never entirely out of fashion, and it is not likely to be while the vogue for the shirt waist continues. In referring to neckwear, the scrim collar and cuff sets must be included, for they are very appropriate and becoming with waists of mohair, Henrietta, flannel and the like, especially in plain colors, the cross stitch decoration in bright blue, green or less vivid hues giving the required note of color. Few women are indifferent to neckwear displays, and this season they are certain not to be for the array in the shops is fascinating to a degree.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Tiny toques go well with small features unless their owner is tall.

For a small nose, wear a hat under the medium size, small flowers.

If the forehead is high keep it in shadow. Avoid a hat that rolls up.

If the features are irregular, a hat whose brim is crushed in here and there, is usually becoming.

Small hats were not frequent in the collections from which was obtained the information of present purpose.

Those no longer young look best in oval or round toques, with deep, not wide, brims. Soft rich colorings or black and white.

Collarettes of ostrich feathers are among the latest novelties. They are less expensive than the boas and quite as pretty. At either end they are finished with bows and long ends of ribbon and black velvet.

Women who find time hanging heavily on their hands may provide themselves with extremely pretty hatpins at very little cost. It is only necessary to buy the common pins, crush off the glass beads and replace them with Indian heads. The latter can be attached with sealing wax or solder.

A medium large hat, with medium wide, low, square crown, covered objectively with cloth surfaced with breast feathers of Impayan pheasants, has the crown encircled by a folded band of mirror velvet in tobacco brown, the band terminating in a bow at the left side, and the bow holding a pair of pheasant wings.

They say that the "baby Irish," which is to be worn so extravagantly this winter for trimmings—yokes, cuffs, collars and chemisettes—is not made in Ireland at all, but in France. The French women, however, are not using their fingers for it, but simply employ the real Irish patterns on the baby Irish net, doing the whole on machines.

FORMER SPEAKER DAVID B. HENDERSON PASSES AWAY

Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 26.—Former Speaker David B. Henderson of the National House of Representatives died at 2 o'clock last afternoon at the Mercy Hospital of paresis, which attacked him nine months ago. He began to sink Friday afternoon, rallied Saturday morning, in the afternoon lapsed into unconsciousness and failed rapidly until the end came. All of his family except a son in California were at his bedside, but Col. Henderson had been unable to recognize anyone but his wife since a week ago, except on Friday, when he partly regained his mental faculties.

Col. Henderson was stricken with paresis last May and his condition grew so grave that he was removed to a hospital in September. His condition remained practically unchanged except for the usual progress of such a disease until a week ago last Friday. He suffered another stroke which resulted in total blindness. The former speaker failed rapidly physically and mentally until Friday, when his mental powers returned for a few hours, followed by a relapse which ended in his death.

The funeral will be held next Thursday. Former Congressman George D. Perkins of Sioux City will deliver an eulogy. The body is to lie in state on Thursday at the Church.

BILL IS PROJECTED TO ATTACH I. T. TO OKLAHOMA

Washington, Feb. 26.—A bill will be introduced in the house during the week having as its purpose the extending of the boundary lines of Oklahoma around Indian Territory. Congressman Curtis of Kansas will, in all probability, introduce the bill. In addition to making Indian Territory a part of Oklahoma, the bill provides for changing the recording districts of the Indian Territory into counties and authorizes Governor Frantz to fill all vacancies temporarily. It is said the bill will make the ninety-seven degree longitude the dividing line between the judicial districts, throwing the Osage nation into the present Indian Territory jurisdiction and part of the Chickasha district into the Oklahoma jurisdiction.

The secretary of the interior

and the senate committee on Indian affairs are at loggerheads over the proposition to extend the existence of the tribal governments for another year.

A Missionary Rally.

At the Christian church Sunday evening there was held a missionary rally. The services consisted of some excellent addresses by laymen of the church on various features of the missionary work, interspersed with beautiful song selections and readings. The program was such as both to delight the audience and to arouse an active interest in carrying "The beautiful story" to the benighted, unchristianized peoples. The pastor shows tactful generalship in harnessing the laity for church work, making them to realize that their religious duties include more than simply sitting as hearers of the word.

THE WHEELER MEMORIAL SERVICE AN IMPRESSIVE ONE

Pursuant to arrangements, the members of the Grand Army Post, the Sons and Daughters of Confederate Veterans and the Veterans of the Spanish-American war, met at the Presbyterian Church in Ada, I. T., on Sunday, Feb. 25th, where Memorial services were conducted in behalf of the late Gen. Joseph Wheeler of Alabama. The services were conducted by Rev. Jno. A. Williams, who first delivered a very interesting address in behalf of the Veterans of the war between the States—both the Gray and the Blue—after which an appropriate address was made by Mr. T. P. Holt, representing the Sons of Confederate Veterans. Mr. Joel Terrell, who had been selected to speak in behalf of the Spanish American War Veterans, not being present, the Rev. Mr. Williams and others, seeing Mr. Otis B. Weaver present and knowing that he had enlisted in the United States service during the Spanish-American war, called on him for a talk, to which request he reluctantly responded in a most appropriate and feeling manner, showing much emotion when he alluded to Gen. Wheeler and his deceased son, who was an intimate friend of Mr. Weaver. After this, the old soldiers were invited to speak of the deceased, which was responded to by Messrs. Doss, Wood and Weaver, with appropriate remarks, after which the Rev. Jno. A. Williams, who is a great favorite with the old soldiers, delivered a most excellent memorial sermon.

J. P. Wood read the last order of General Wheeler to his old command after the surrender, which was much appreciated.

The Daughters of the Confederate Veterans did their part well by rendering excellent music for the occasion.

After the services were over at the church, the Wm. L. Byrd Camp of United Confederate Veterans passed the following resolution:

Resolved, First, That the members of the Wm. L. Byrd Camp of United Confederate Veterans hereby tender their sincere thanks to Rev. Jno. A. Williams for the most excellent manner in which he conducted the memorial services held this day for Gen. Joseph Wheeler, and for the use of the church for the same.

Resolved, Second, That the thanks of this Camp are extended to Messrs. T. P. Holt, Otis B. Weaver, J. M. Doss and J. P. Wood for the appropriate address delivered by them upon this occasion, and to the Daughters of the Confederate Veterans for the excellent music furnished for the occasion.

Resolved, Third, That the newspapers of Ada be requested to publish these proceedings.

J. M. Doss,
S. H. Hargis,
J. P. Wood,
Committee.

BRING IN YOUR WANTS.

No more than fifteen words, initials or numbers will be accepted on this proposition and copy must be in this office not later than Saturday noon. Write plain and make your Want to the point, and we will do the rest. Note these conditions as they will not appear again.

AN OFFICIAL PURGING PLANNED FOR TERRITORY

Washington, Feb. 26.—According to the stories emanating from the White House, a mass of civic corruption on the part of republican office holders in Indian Territory is to be served to the public next month. It is said that there will be disclosure of crookedness on the part of carpet baggers and others who have found lodgement in the territory in connection with the administration of the affairs of the five civilized tribes. Secretary Hitchcock, who for a long time has been apparently hopelessly blind, has finally had his official sight restored and has permitted it to become known that he has made discoveries of official pulcritudes in Indian Territory and here in Washington that are simply startling. At the White House it is stated that the president himself outlined the investigation and instructed the secretary of the interior how to proceed in order to elicit the facts desired. A detailed report on this salacious subject is now being prepared by the department of the interior for Attorney General Moody, who, it is reported, will order a series of prosecutions that, like the postal scandal, will also hit in high places.

Ardmoreites Protest.

Ardmore, I. T., Feb. 23.—Many protests against certain provisions in the Curtis bill relating to the disposition of Indian lands belonging to the Chickasaw and Choctaw were sent to Washington today. The provision allowing freedmen to purchase land at appraised value is especially displeasing to land interests.

SPORTS AND ADVENTURE

BITTEN BY A SHARK.

Naval surgeons have some curious cases to deal with on board Uncle Sam's warships. Assistant Surgeon F. M. Munson has made a report to the Navy Department which ought to settle the long-disputed controversy as to the man-eating propensities of sharks.

"On November 2, 1904," says he, "a boatswain's mate of the Piscataqua, then lying in the inner harbor of Olongapo, P. I., while bathing from the side of the ship, was bitten on the foot by a shark. The man had a good view of the shark and there can be no doubt as to the identity of the species of fish.

"The two sharp bites, one on the dorsal and one on the plantar surface near the toes, showed unmistakably the marks of three rows of teeth in each lacerated wound. On the osseous skin was torn from the underlying tissues for two inches; two tendons and several branches of the dorsalis pedis artery were severed. One of the tarsal bones was crushed into small fragments. On the plantar surface the thick fascia was torn away about one inch. As soon as the man was lifted out of the water an aseptic dressing was applied by the hospital apprentice and the medical officers were sent for.

"As the wound was bleeding profusely, a tourniquet was applied and the man immediately taken ashore and placed upon the operating table; the fragments of bone were removed, the arteries ligated and tendons sutured; the fascia on the plantar and the skin on both surfaces sutured, through and through drainage being secured by a rubber drainage tube left in the wound. The man was sent to the naval hospital at Cavite the following day, and recovered, some stiffness of the foot remaining."—Washington Star.

KNEW HIS OWN WORTH.

In one of the early editions of Murray's Guide to Switzerland it was stated that scarcely anybody had ascended the mountains, and those who had were chiefly of unsound mind. Ideas have altered since then, and the climber nowadays has to be a healthy-minded mortal of at least ordinary intelligence; although a writer in Outing declares that the secret is successful and skilful use of the feet.

The tyro at mountain-climbing proclaims himself at once by his inability to make progress where handholds are scarce. The hands should, as a rule, be used only as anchors, and the upward progress made by simply stepping upward on any ledges that are available. It is a very common occurrence in the Alps to meet a party that includes an incapable amateur who has lost all power in his arms, and has actually to be pushed, dangled and almost carried down the rocks because his arms have given out through lack of knowledge in using them.

Last year on Mont Blanc I witnessed a curious accident which illustrates the consequences of carelessness. We were following downward behind a party composed of two guides and a stout German climber who objected to having the rope tied about his waist.

At one point we were dismayed to see the amateur vanish through the apparently level surface of the snow, leaving the empty loop of the rope dangling down the hole.

We rushed to the edge of the crevasse, and a glance down into its black, icy depths showed the serious nature of the accident. The crevasse was fully 200 feet deep, and our ropes were of no use for a rescue; besides, as no answer came to our calls, we decided that the unfortunate climber had paid the penalty of his foolishness.

Some of us ran down to the Grands-Mulets and brought up a number of guides carrying a long, strong rope and the wherewithal to carry the body down to the valley.

We lowered the guide into the depths of the glacier, and judge of our surprise when we heard voices far below. Our wonder was still further increased when the guide came up and said that the stout German was sitting at the bottom of the crevasse, smoking a pipe. Luckily, he had fallen on a bed of soft snow, and his only serious damage was a broken leg.

He absolutely refused to be pulled up until a bargain had been struck as to the cost of the rescue.

SAVED BY A BABY.

In 1895 the difficulties between the Chinese and Japanese made the lot of missionaries in China extremely dangerous. They recognized the serious consequences of a general uprising of the Chinese. In "The Tragedy of Pautingfu" there is a letter from an American woman telling how a party of Chinese soldiers were checked when they came rushing toward her house:

"A week ago a great crowd of Chinese soldiers came to the compound, about fifteen rods from her. They caused great disturbance among the Chinese servants and others. The racket about the place was something terrible.

Mr. Roberts did what he could to keep them quiet. Dr. Noble soon came, and they two worked all the afternoon, trying to entertain these men by answering their questions and showing them round. They broke into the cellars, but did not break into the houses, although they pushed on the doors and wanted to get in badly; but the gentlemen told them there was only a woman inside, and it was not proper for them to go in. To this they finally agreed, for the Chinese are very particular about such things.

I soon saw them coming toward the house like a lot of hounds on the track of some prey. They came to the windows and began looking in, but did not try the doors.

I saw some faces at one window which did not look very bad, so I sat down at the window with Baby Paul. He immediately reached out his little arms to them, and laughed, delighted to see so many faces. They began to smile and ask questions. I asked them where they were from and the answered me. They thought Paul would be cold, dressed in white. So I showed them that he had flannel on under, et cetera, and they seemed satisfied.

They finally left. You can imagine my relief.

CONQUERING A GRIZZLY.

Nearly all old Californians, says the author of "Early Days in California," have heard of "Mountain Charley," who lived in the Santa Cruz mountains, where he hunted bear and deer. Of his adventures, many of which were remarkable, there is none stranger than his fight with a grizzly.

One morning he started out with his gun. He had gone but a short distance when he found himself face to face with a grizzly. The bear was sitting on his haunches reaching for acorns when Charley came upon him. The hunter tried to bring his rifle up, but being at such close quarters, the bear disarmed him by striking the weapon with his paw and knocking the weapon out of his hands. At the same time he embraced Charley.

Both fell to the ground. Being on a hillside, they rolled over and over until they reached the ravine below, when the bear loosened its hold, yet did not seem inclined to give up the fight.

Charley realized that his only chance was to "wind" the bear by striking him with his fist over the heart. He landed the blow as near the region as possible. He struck first with one fist and then with the other in rapid succession when he found the bear weakening.

By this time they were close to the embankment of the creek. The bear had lost no time in getting in his scratches and bites. It had made one wound over the hunter's forehead and down the cheek to the bone, and had torn one of his eyes from the socket. It had also fastened its teeth in the man's left arm, and made an ugly wound there.

With a desperate lunge Charley shoved the bear over the embankment into the water. Then, too weak to stand, he fell exhausted upon the ground. The bear was apparently in the same condition. It waded to the opposite bank and lay down.

At last the bear rose to its feet and walked up the stream, frequently stopping and looking back, as if hesitating whether or not to renew the fight. Going at a slow pace, it finally disappeared.

When Mountain Charley thought he could move with safety, he crawled to the stream and drank a little water, then washed the blood from his face, pushed the eye back into the socket, and crawled to his home. He was taken to San Jose for medical treatment. The bones of one arm were broken. Several months passed before he recovered. His eye was so disfigured that his friends hardly knew him. Not discouraged by this terrible experience, however, he continued to hunt until game became scarce.

SLEEPING WITH SNAKES.

My present bon always sleeps in my bed room with my feet. He is perfectly clean, lies still and very seldom disturbs me; occasionally he crawls to my face to lick it. I frequently take a python to bed, but at present she is timid, and if she cannot find my feet, crawls out of the bed and curls herself on the floor.

I do not myself believe that any python or boa is savage, but they are dreadfully timid, especially from the ill-treatment they receive when first caught and the misery and terror they endure on the voyage. There is another thing. They have no eyelids, and being suddenly uncovered and dragged forth to the light suffer from the glare very acutely. It is best, therefore, to hide their heads in your hand or under your coat. Handle them often and give them water, pressing their heads gently into it.

I feed my boas frequently from my hand, but the last time I offered a python a guinea pig the prey escaped and the python took in the whole of my hand instead. He soon discovered his mistake and was greatly distressed, rubbed his head against my hand and seemed to fear some sort of punishment.

Since that time I have had great difficulty in persuading him to eat unless I nurse him or take him to bed, when he will lie the whole night with his head in my hand. From a letter by Dr. Mann, in "My Strange Pets," by Richard Bell.

MIRRORS IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

In this age of publicity, when many soul, try women are glad to furnish photographs for use in print, it is little wonder they are anxious to look their prettiest when being "taken." One of the latest European fads is to pose with a hand glass. French women say "that fascinating expression" is obtained only by such a method, and the idea is being received well by photographers throughout Europe. Sometimes the mirror is held for fifteen or twenty minutes before the woman is satisfied that others will see her as she sees herself. When the right expression does come she drops the mirror, and the photographer does the rest.

BLISTERING IN LINEN.

To prevent blistering in linen, which is almost always due to bad starching, but occasionally to ironing the articles when too wet, each article must be well starched through, and when about to iron it, it must be dampened evenly, but not wet. Collars and cuffs that have to be turned down should be fixed in the proper shape immediately after each one is ironed, for then the starch is still flexible.

SELECTING AND COOKING FISH.

Fish should enter into the diet of both healthy people and invalids. Its chief disadvantage for folks in good health is that it is not satisfying. This is largely owing to the great amount of water that it contains.

It is an agreeable change from meat. Any white fish is easily digested. To be really good and wholesome fish should not only be strictly fresh, but in season. It should no more be eaten out of season than game, says the Boston Traveler.

Care should be taken also that the fish is mature, so that the flavor of the meat may be at its best. After spawning it makes a very poor diet. The flesh is then soft and of a bluish color and after it is cooked it has not the firmness that characterizes good fish. Fish must be perfectly fresh, otherwise serious results may follow after eating it. It deteriorates more quickly than most food and consequently the first essential is freshness. If it is at all "woolly" its flavor is gone and the meat is insipid.

CLEANING FEATHERS.

Prepare sufficient lime water for the quantity of feathers you have to clean, in the following manner: Mix thoroughly one pound of quick lime in each gallon of water required and let it stand until all the undissolved lime is precipitated as a fine powder to the bottom of the tub or pan, whereupon pour off the clear liquor for use.

Now, having put the feathers in a clean tub, pour the lime water on them and stir them well in it until they all sink to the bottom, by which time there should be enough lime water to cover them to a depth of three inches. Let them stand in this three or four days, then take them out, drain them in a sieve, and afterwards wash them on nets having about the same mesh as a cabbage net; shake the net occasionally and those feathers that are dry will fall through. When they are all dry, beat them well to get rid of the dust.

Orange Punch—Boil one pound of sugar and one pint of water with the grated yellow rind of one orange for five minutes. Take from the fire and strain; add the juice of three oranges and two lemons and set aside to cool. When ready to use it, add a pint of shaved ice and a quart of water.

Pineapple Ice Cream—Three pints of cream, one pint milk, two ripe pineapples; with two pounds of sugar; peel and slice the pineapples, cover them with sugar and let stand about three hours; then chop the fruit into the syrup formed and strain through a fine sieve; beat into the cream and freeze. Some of the fruit can be cut in small pieces and stirred into the cream. Peach ice cream is made in the same way.

Mushrooms a la Provencale—This recipe has just been sent me by a friend who is spending a year in an old French chateau studying French customs. "The Provencale cooks," she says, "first blanch the mushrooms in boiling water, to which a teaspoonful of vinegar has been added. Remove and let them lie for an hour in a bath of oil, salt, pepper and a pinch of garlic. Then take out the mushrooms and set the saucepan over the fire to heat the oil. When very hot add the mushrooms with a little minced parsley. Toss the mushrooms while cooking, then take up, drain, squeeze over them the juice of a lemon and serve with quarters of lemon, garnishing the dish on which they are served."—New York Evening Telegram.

Virginia Barbecued Ham—Cut raw ham in thin slices and soak in scalding water one-half hour. Take them out and lay them in a frying pan. Pepper each slice and spread on one-fourth teaspoonful of made mustard. Fry in vinegar, one-half teaspoonful to each slice, turning often. A delicious breakfast dish with pork is scrapple. Take the head, heart and any lean scraps of pork and boil until the flesh slips from the bones. Remove all fat, gristle and bones, and chop fine. When cold remove the fat from the surface of the liquor in which the meat was boiled and return to the fire. As soon as it boils put on the chopped meat and pepper and salt to taste. Allow it to come to a boil again and thicken with cornmeal, letting the meal slip through the fingers slowly to prevent lumps. Cook an hour, stirring very often, and then push back on the stove to boil gently for another hour. Mold in a shallow, square pan, and when cold fry in slices, the same as you do cold mush.

GUESSING.

A man will struggle hard and long to gain what he deems success. He will try; he feels that he was wrong. And starts in on another guess.

—Boston Courier.

MONEY IN IT.

Kulicker—"Strange they didn't name the baby after its rich uncle." Boeker—"No; he looked at it, and said he'd give them $10,000 not to."—Harper's Bazaar.

A SURE CURE.

Puffenburg—"I'd give anything to know how you managed to reduce your weight."

Thimow—"I have made it impossible to get much to eat, by joining an Anti-Tipping Society."—Brooklyn Life.

IN HONOR BOUND.

"I ain't dirty by choice, ma'am," the hobo explained. "I'm bound by honor. I wrote a testimonial for a soapmaker once an' promised ter use no other."

"Well, why don't you use that?" demanded Mrs. Goodley. "Because, ma'am, dat firm failed in 1887."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A MAIDEN PHILOSOPHER.

"I suppose you will marry when you grow up?" said the visitor, pleasantly. "No," replied the thoughtful little girl, innocently. "Mamma says papa is more care than the children, so I guess the care of my children will be enough for me without the care of a husband."—Chicago Journal.

A BAD BREAK.

"My husband could never write any poetry unless he was smoking," said the one in black.

"I believe your husband is dead," said the man, with a far-off look.

"Yes, he is."

"Do you suppose he is writing any poetry now?"—Yonkers Statesman.

OLD FRIENDS.

The Wife—"What luck?" The Husband (wearily)—"None whatever."

The Wife—"Were there no servants in the intelligence office?"

The Husband (sadly)—"Lots of them, but they had all worked for us before."—Woman's Home Companion.

FRENZIED FINANCE.

"I made money to-day all right. I sold our piano for $150."

"Made money? Why, you told me it cost you $350."

"I know, but I never paid for it."—New York Evening Mail.

THE CHUGS.

Mrs. Chugwater—"This paper says the passengers escaped on a raft. How could they make a raft at sea?"

Mr. Chugwater—"They could use the ship's log, couldn't they? Why don't you use your own reasoning faculties once in a while?"—Chicago Tribune.

THE CENSURER.

"I heard you swearing at an awful rate this morning. What was the matter?" said the first flat dweller.

"Why, I was mad at that coal man for swearing so at the poor horse he was trying to back into the court!" explained the other, with flashing eyes. "It was awful!"—Detroit Free Press.

CIRCULATED SOME.

"Have you a library in your town?" asked the New York man.

"Oh, yes," replied the Westerner.

"A circulating one?"

"Well, it wasn't intended for that sort of a library, but we had two or three cyclones out our way that circulated it considerably."—Yonkers Statesman.

MORE TO THE POINT.

"Ef yer real interested," said Deacon Skinner, "I'll tell ye what I want fur that horse."

"Oh, I wouldn't be interested in knowin' that," replied Farmer Strude.

"No?"

"No; but I wouldn't mind knowin' what y'd take."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

AS REVISED.

"A horse! A horse!" exclaimed King Richard. "My kingdom for a horse!"

"There isn't one in the building, your Majesty," said one of the staves behind the scenes in a husky, agonized, stage whisper. "Society is using all of 'em for a horse show!"

Realizing his mistake, he called for an automobile, but it was too late. A moment more and Richmond was upon him.—Chicago Tribune.

HATPIN HOLDERS.

In these days of many hatpins the hatpin holder has become a necessary adjunct to the well-appointed bureau. They are made now as one of the toilet set, comprising brush, comb, mirror, powder box, tray, etc., or may be had separately in very pretty designs. An ingenious substitute for the silver holder, and one in reach of every girl, is a tall glass bottle with a mouth wide enough to hold several pins comfortably. Nearly everybody has a pretty bottle or two put away, and one of these, with a bow on the neck or a little picture pasted on the side, will hold the hatpins all right until Christmas, when one of the new silver holders will probably appear.

A WOMAN, TOO.

A young woman who was spending the evening with the family of Lord Coleridge, the eminent English jurist, was about to start for her home at 10 o'clock when he offered to accompany her. She, with the respect due to his age, and with the fearlessness of youth, due to ignorance of the dangers surrounding young women, said: "I thank you, but I do not want to trouble you. Cannot the maid accompany me?" His answer showed the respect in which he held all women. He said: "My dear, the maid is a woman also." If all men were as truly courteous there would be no complaint on the part of women that they do not receive the treatment they should receive from the opposite sex.—New York Tribune.

OBSERVE HOME ANNIVERSARIES.

The happiest households are that that do not let die out the sentiment connected with various anniversaries. Although gift-giving or recognition of such events in a suitable way may be out of the question owing to the straitened circumstances of those "within the gates," there can yet be a little air of festivity when mother's or father's birthday comes round, or some wedding anniversary is to be celebrated. An extra dish, a little bunch of flowers, or some special music prepared for the occasion, will show the kindly spirit and the loving remembrance that count for more than the money value of any gift. As the children grow up, if these festivals are encouraged, they will have much to look forward to and much more to remember in the years to come when they go out to do battle with the world and find that sentiment is crushed under foot and affection is regarded only as a side issue.

CHILDREN'S PARTY SUPPERS.

The most charming thing about any meal is a surprise connected with it, and in this supper there are several, of a simple character, easily prepared and intended for the smallest children: Cham broth in cups with whipped cream.

Animal crackers.

Creamed chicken; rolled sandwiches. Small cups of cocoa.

Paper roses with plain ice cream concealed in them; little cakes. Put the chicken into small square boxes and covers and give a tiny downy chicken on the cover of each. Serve the sandwiches tied with ribbons, and the cocoa in little after-dinner coffee-cups with little spoons. Get some large paper roses and remove the centres, fitting a little paper cup in each, and laying the flat centre on again when it is served; pass the plates with the little lighted cakes with this.—Harper's Bazar.

SAVE TISSUE PAPER.

The tissue paper in which parcels are wrapped should never be thrown away, but smoothed out and laid away in a drawer for future use.

A small pad of tissue paper sprinkled with methylated spirit will give a brilliant polish to mirrors, picture glasses and crystal. The pad, used without the spirit, is excellent for burnishing steel, rubbing grease spots off furniture, polishing silver, etc.

For packing glass, china and ornaments a roll of tissue paper is invaluable, says Home Notes.

When packing hats a wisp of tissue paper should be twisted around all upstanding ends of ribbon, ostriches and wings to prevent crushing. Dress and blouse sleeves should be stuffed with soft paper, and a sheet of it placed between the folds.

Silk handkerchiefs, ribbons and lace should all be ironed between a layer of tissue paper, and the latter is a fine polisher for steel buckles and hatpins.

DRESS FOR THEMSELVES.

Women do not dress to attract the admiration of men; vanity, I am afraid, is the author of this suggestion, writes a correspondent of the London Daily News. Neither is it to excite the envy of women. Why do men everywhere fall so easily into this mean estimate of our sex?

God has planted, I believe, a true instinct into all true women's natures—perhaps partly on account, it may be, of their very subtle and universal influence as mother, wife, sister, friend—not only to be attractive, but to appear so.

We could count numberless instances to support this theory. The world is dark and cold enough, our eyes refuse to be satisfied with garments of black and brown, or even chocolate or coffee colored; these are quite as, and more, expensive than the sweet, fresh toilets made lovely by rainbow-tinted flowers and ribbons that rejoice the eye of the true artist.

Surely it was not as a coquette to inspire the admiration of men that the woman whose pulse was above all rubies whose husband trusted in her, and in whose tongue was the law of kindness, clothed herself in coverings of tapestry, silk and purple. I think rather her radiant matched the innate dignity and beauty of her character. And when I see the pretty garments around me I like to feel that they are most often the outcome of sunny, womanly natures, whose desire is to please and to be pleased.—Manchester Union.

A WOMAN PATENT ATTORNEY.

The experience of Miss Florence King, of Chicago, patent attorney, shows that the "self-made woman" has arrived along with the "self-made man," of whom America has long been proud. She handles the most intricate inventions and complicated cases, and practices in the Supreme Court of the United States. She became famous when she won the case of Mrs. Hamilton Rogers against a great corporation, a case which men attorneys had repeatedly refused to touch as hopeless. She was born in a log cabin, left an orphan at five, went to district school, earned her first money in the kitchen at $1.25 a week, worked her own way through college, started business life as a stenographer, studied law, specialized in patent law, and after various other successes was admitted to the Supreme Court in 1903. She took a course in mechanical and electrical engineering at Armour Institute, and can pass, it is said, expert opinion on mechanical inventions before presenting them at the Patent Office.

STYLES IN NECKWEAR.

Scarf of lace and printed chiffon for evening wear are so closely allied to neckwear that they must be mentioned with it and the newest come in frilled and pleated effects that are extremely pretty. Crepe de Chine is employed for the making of some dainty stocks and ties, both in white and colors, and medallions and frills of lace lend a touch of ornamentation. In pastel colorings these collars are dainty and charming. In tailored neckwear a fancy is observable for long tail ends, and whether of wash material or of silk this elongated effect is evidenced. Taffeta embroidered in colors and in black and white designs is a favored material for these fancy tailored stocks, and then there are the handkerchief ties in bright tints and Oriental colorings which are exceedingly smart for autumn or winter wear with a plain shirt waist, whether of linen or heavier fabric. The trim little turnover collar with embroidered edge and worn with a narrow silk or satin tie is as much in style as ever. There is a neat air about this collar that is very fetching. Of course, the linen collar for wear with strictly tailored waists is never entirely out of fashion, and it is not likely to be while the vogue for the shirt waist continues. In referring to neckwear, the scarf collar and cuff sets must be included, for they are very appropriate and becoming with waists of mohair, Henrietta, flannel and the like, especially in plain colors, the cross stitch decoration in bright blue, green or less vivid hues giving the required note of color. Few women are indifferent to neckwear displays, and this season they are certain not to be for the array in the shops is fascinating to a degree.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Tiny toques go well with small features unless their owner is tall.

For a small nose, wear a hat under the medium size, small flowers.

If the forehead is high keep it in shadow. Avoid a hat that rolls up.

If the features are irregular, a hat whose brim is crushed in here and there, is usually becoming.

Small hats were not frequent in the collections from which was obtained the information of present purpose.

Those no longer young "look best in oval or round toques, with deep, not wide, brims. Soft rich colorings or black and white.

Collarettes of ostrich feathers are among the latest novelties. They are less expensive than the bows and quite as pretty. At either end they are finished with bows and long ends of ribbon and black velvet.

Women who find time hanging heavily on their hands may provide themselves with extremely pretty hatpins at very little cost. It is only necessary to buy the common pins, crush off the glass heads and replace them with Indian heads. The latter can be attached with sealing wax or solder.

A medium large hat, with medium wide, low, square crown, covered obliquely with cloth surfaced with breast feathers of Impayan pheasants, has the crown encircled by a folded band of mirror velvet in tobacco brown, the band terminating in a bow at the left side, and the bow holding a pair of pheasant wings.

They say that the "baby Irish," which is to be worn so extravagantly, this winter for trimmings—yokes, cuffs, collars and chemises—is not made in Ireland at all, but in France. The French women, however, are not using their fingers for it, but simply employ the real Irish patterns on the baby Irish net, doing the whole on machines.

FORMER SPEAKER DAVID B. HENDERSON PASSES AWAY

Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 26.—Former Speaker David B. Henderson of the National House of Representatives died at 2 o'clock last afternoon at the Mercy Hospital of paresis, which attacked him nine months ago. He began to sink Friday afternoon, rallied Saturday morning, in the afternoon lapsed into unconsciousness and failed rapidly until the end came. All of his family except a son in California were at his bedside, but Col. Henderson had been unable to recognize anyone but his wife since a week ago, except on Friday, when he partly regained his mental faculties. Col. Henderson was stricken with paresis last May and his condition grew so grave that he was removed to a hospital in September. His condition remained practically unchanged except for the usual progress of such a disease until a week ago last Friday. He suffered another stroke which resulted in total blindness. The former speaker failed rapidly physically and mentally until Friday, when his mental powers returned for a few hours, followed by a relapse which ended in his death. The funeral will be held next Thursday. Former Congressman George D. Perkins of Sioux City will deliver an eulogy. The body is to lie in state on Thursday at the Church.

BILL IS PROJECTED TO ATTACH I. T. TO OKLAHOMA

Washington, Feb. 26.—A bill will be introduced in the house during the week having as its purpose the extending of the boundary lines of Oklahoma around Indian Territory. Congressman Curtis of Kansas will, in all probability, introduce the bill. In addition to making Indian Territory a part of Oklahoma, the bill provides for changing the recording districts of the Indian Territory into counties and authorizes Governor Frantz to fill all vacancies temporarily. It is said the bill will make the ninety-seven degree longitude the dividing line between the judicial districts, throwing the Osage nation into the present Indian Territory jurisdiction and part of the Chickasha district into the Oklahoma jurisdiction. The secretary of the interior and the senate committee on Indian affairs are at loggerheads over the proposition to extend the existence of the tribal governments for another year.

A Missionary Rally.

At the Christian church Sunday evening there was held a missionary rally. The services consisted of some excellent addresses by laymen of the church on various features of the missionary work, interspersed with beautiful song selections and reading. The program was such as both to delight the audience and to arouse an active interest in carrying "The beautiful story" to the benighted, unchristianized peoples. The pastor shows tactful leadership in harnessing the laity for church work, making them to realize that their religious duties include more than supinely sitting as hearers of the word. THE WHEELER MEMORIAL SERVICE AN IMPRESSIVE ONE

Pursuant to arrangements, the Confederate Veterans, with the members of the Grand Army Post, the Sons and Daughters of Confederate Veterans and the Veterans of the Spanish-American war, met at the Presbyterian Church in Ada, I. T., on Sunday, Feb. 25th, where Memorial services were conducted in behalf of the late Gen. Joseph Wheeler of Alabama. The services were conducted by Rev. Jno A Williams, who first delivered a very interesting address in behalf of the Veterans of the war between the States—both the Gray and the Blue—after which an appropriate address was made by Mr. T. P. Holt, representing the Sons of Confederate Veterans. Mr. Joel Terrell, who had been selected to speak in behalf of the Spanish American War Veterans, not being present, the Rev. Mr. Williams and others, seeing Mr. Otis B. Weaver present and knowing that he had enlisted in the United States service during the Spanish-American war, called on him for a talk, to which request he reluctantly responded in a most appropriate and feeling manner, showing much emotion when he alluded to Gen. Wheeler and his deceased son, who was an intimate friend of Mr. Weaver. After this, the old soldiers were invited to speak of the deceased, which was responded to by Messrs. Doss, Wood and Weaver, with appropriate remarks, after which the Rev. Jno A Williams, who is a great favorite with the old soldiers, delivered a most excellent memorial sermon. J. P. Wood read the last order of General Wheeler to his old command after the surrender, which was much appreciated. The Daughters of the Confederate Veterans did their part well by rendering excellent music for the occasion. After the services were over at the church, the Wm. L. Byrd Camp of United Confederate Veterans passed the following resolution: Resolved, First, That the members of the Wm. L. Byrd Camp of United Confederate Veterans hereby tender their sincere thanks to Rev. Jno A. Williams for the most excellent manner in which he conducted the memorial services held this day for Gen. Joseph Wheeler, and for the use of the church for the same. Resolved, Second, That the thanks of this Camp are extended to Messrs. T. P. Holt, Otis B. Weaver, J. M. Doss and J. P. Wood for the appropriate addresses delivered by them upon this occasion, and to the Daughters of the Confederate Veterans for the excellent music furnished for the occasion. Resolved, Third, That the newspapers of Ada be requested to publish these proceedings. J. M. Doss, S. H. Hargis, J. P. Wood, Committee.

AN OFFICIAL PURGING PLANNED FOR TERRITORY

Washington, Feb. 26.—According to the stories emanating from the White House, a wave of civic corruption on the part of republican office holders in Indian Territory is to be served to the public next month. It is said that there will be disclosures of crookedness on the part of carpet baggers and others who have found lodgement in the territory in connection with the administration of the affairs of the five civilized tribes. Secretary Hitchcock, who for a long time has been apparently hopelessly blind, has finally had his official sight restored and has permitted it to become known that he has made discoveries of official perversities in Indian Territory and here in Washington, that are simply startling. At the White House it is stated that the president himself outlined the investigation and instructed the secretary of the interior how to proceed in order to elicit the facts desired. A detailed report on this salacious subject is now being prepared by the department of the interior for Attorney General Moody, who, it is reported, will order a series of prosecutions that, like the postal scandal, will also hit in high places.

Ardmoreites Protest.

Ardmore, I. T., Feb. 23.—Many protests against certain provisions in the Curtis bill relating to the disposition of Indian lands belonging to the Chickasaw and Choctaw were sent to Washington today. The provision allowing freedmen to purchase land at its appraised value is especially displeasing to land interests.

WANT NO MORE THAN WE DESERVE.

A special in the Dallas News reads as follows:

"Smithville, Tex. 22.—S. M. Halmark, formerly of Jeddo, this county, a farmer, about 50 years of age, was shot at Ada, I. T. Monday and died Tuesday afternoon. His remains will be forwarded here for burial."

The fact is the poor man was seized with an epileptic fit on the street, was cared for faithfully by the officials, but gradually sank until death came in three days.

Ada's fair reputation suffers enough stigma from true stories of sanguinary happenings hereabouts, and she does not relish such false and distorted reports, touching her life and activities.

The big Kentuckians' Home-coming, so extensively advertised for next summer, should not be confused with the proverbial Kentucky home coming at four o'clock in the morning.

The Muskogee Times and Muskogee Democrat having consolidated and hyphenated themselves, the new organ is sure to be an eminent success both financially and politically.

"To the last moment of his breath,
On hope the wretch relies;
And e'en the pang preceding death
Bids expectation rise."

—Statehood Ode.

A TRAVELING man said he liked to come to Ada, because it is such a clean, gentlemanly town. In his opinion the absence of rowdyism and indecent sights and sounds is quite noticeable, and is a high testimonial to the superior citizenship of Ada. And, he adds, this opinion is shared by the bulk of the traveling public. Ada is proud to bear such an enviable reputation.

WOMAN'S vanity is the target for many an unjust taunt from man. It is announced that a German statistician has been calculating what part of a woman's life is spent before her mirror. He begins with six years and ends with sixty, and makes the time consumed in all the intervening periods 7,000 hours, or about ten months of life. So it is seen the figures vindicate her. Why, she doesn't average a minute before the glass out of the hour.

INCENDIARY FLAMES CONSUME BIG HAY BARN

Mr. E. W. Hardin has received advice of a fire at Owl giving the following details:

About 10 o'clock Saturday night fire broke out in the large hay barn of Lee Cross at the town of Owl. The extent of loss is not known. The hay was protected by $2,000 insurance and barn by $650.

The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin. About the time it was discovered a man was seen running across the railroad track near the barn. Parties at Owl phoned to Coalgate officials, who intercepted a south-bound freight train at the Choctaw crossing. One white man and two negroes got off there and were promptly arrested and locked up at Coalgate. The white man has been identified as the party seen running near the burning barn.

Also several hundred dollars worth of implements, stored in the building, were consumed. It is thought the loss may reach $4,500.

TIDAL WAVE DESTROYS TWO THOUSAND LIVES

Buena Ventura, Colombia, Feb. 26.—An earthquake occurred at 10:35 Sunday morning. It was of thirty-one seconds' duration. It was seven minutes south by north in movement. Buena Ventura was considerably shaken. Minor damage resulted.

The people were almost panic-stricken, kneeling, weeping and praying. Clocks were stopped and cables broken in places.

The tidal was inconsequential here, but reports from the coast, inclusive of about fifty leagues south, state that 2,000 were killed by falling houses or drowned by the waves. Whole families were lost. Sailing vessels encountered hundreds of corpses and a quantity of dead fish.

Many small settlements were swept away. Damage at Tumaco by the earthquake and wave was greater than here, but few lives were lost.

LUNCHEES WITHOUT PIE.

Some Delicious and Nutritious Sandwiches and Light Desserts Best—Heavy Foods Objectionable.

Sandwiches may well form the foundation of a well balanced cold lunch and a variety of fillings may be used. Any carefully cooked cold meat may be used, although pork and veal, being the hardest of all meats to digest, are objectionable, especially for children. Every housewife should strive to excel in making fine quality bread, biscuits, muffins, etc. Bread for sandwiches should be thinly sliced.

Small loaves of biscuit dough or of yeast bread may be baked in corn cans, the small round slices being especially desirable for sandwiches. Brown bread sandwiches with filling of finely mashed, well seasoned baked beans are very nice, and should find a place in the lunch basket at least once a week. Meat for filling should be run through a chopper, or chopped very finely by hand, moistened with stock or sweet cream and carefully seasoned with salt, and a very little pepper is desired. Eggs placed in boiling water and kept hot, not boiling, for 20 minutes, then mashed with a fork, seasoned, and butter added to make a smooth paste are a delicious filling, also celery, chopped or sliced, and sprinkled with salt.

Nuts, especially peanuts, run through the chopper and simply moistened with butter form another kind sure to delight the children. This may be prepared and kept on hand in glass jars in cold weather. Seeded (not seedless) raisins washed thoroughly and run through the ever useful chopper, then placed on oil paper in a pan with perforated bottom and placed over a kettle of boiling water, with the pan tightly covered, and allowed to steam ten minutes, then put in glass jars will keep indefinitely and are always ready to spread between bread, biscuits or crackers with a piece of cheese, and most effectively takes the place of pie. Dates and figs are also nice used in the same way.

Dainty cup puddings of rice, tapioca, custard and squash or pumpkin prepared the same as for pies may be often baked with a large one for the table, making little extra work, and will be appreciated. The simplest water or cream sponge cake may be given occasionally and feed as an especial treat. Raw or nicely baked apples and a bottle of milk or cocoa are nice additions to the lunch basket.

The lunch should be put up daintily, each kind of food wrapped separately in oiled or buttered paper and a paper napkin provided. The child who is given simple, easily digested food will do his school work with far greater ease than one given a rich complicated diet that draws the blood from the brain to assist the overtaxed digestive organs. In their tedious work. Wrong living is responsible for many a dull pupil, and thinking mothers everywhere are awakening to the fact.—Orange Judd Farm.

BREADS AND BISCUITS.

A Welcome Change from Wheat Bread Is the Occasional Use of Rye and Boston-Brown.

Rye Bread.

Put two quarts rye flour into a stone jar; stir into it one cup yeast (or one cake, dissolved in water), two teaspoonfuls salt, and enough water to moisten well; let rise over night in warm place; in the morning stir it down well; do not add more flour, but put into well-buttered pans as soon as light. Bake in slow oven.

Boston-Brown Bread.

Sift together three cups cornmeal, two cups rye flour and one cup wheat flour; mix three cups sour milk and one cup New Orleans molasses, two even teaspoonfuls salt, and 1½ teaspoonfuls soda, the soda having been dissolved in a little warm water. While mixture is effervescing, pour it into the flour, beating until smooth. Grease a pudding boiler (or one-pound baking powder cans), pour in the batter, filling only to within two inches of the top; cover closely and place in a kettle of boiling water; let steam four or five hours.

Cream Biscuit.

Mix two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder with four cups flour and one level teaspoonful of salt; add

SPORTS AND ADVENTURE

BITTEN BY A SHARK.

Naval surgeons have some curious cases to deal with on board Uncle Sam's warships. Assistant Surgeon F. M. Munson has made a report to the Navy Department which ought to settle the long-disputed controversy as to the man-eating propensities of sharks.

"On November 2, 1904," says he, "a boatswain's mate of the Piscataqua, then lying in the inner harbor of Olongapo, P. I., while bathing from the side of the ship, was bitten on the foot by a shark. The man had a good view of the shark and there can be no doubt as to the identity of the species of fish."

"The two are-shaped bites, one on the dorsal and one on the plantar surface near the toes, showed unmistakably the marks of three rows of teeth in each lacerated wound. On the osseous skin was torn from the underlying tissues for two inches; two tendons and several branches of the dorsal-plantar artery were severed. One of the tarsal bones was crushed into small fragments. On the plantar surface the thick fascia was torn away about one inch. As soon as the man was lifted out of the water an aseptic dressing was applied by the hospital apprentice and the medical officers were sent for."

"As the wound was bleeding profusely, a tourniquet was applied and the man immediately taken ashore and placed upon the operating table; the fragments of bone were removed, the arteries ligated and tendons sutured; the fascia on the plantar and the skin on both surfaces sutured, through and through drainage being secured by a rubber drainage tube left in the wound. The man was sent to the naval hospital at Cavite the following day, and recovered, some stiffness of the foot remaining."—Washington Star.

KNEW HIS OWN WORTH.

In one of the early editions of Murray's Guide to Switzerland it was stated that scarcely anybody had ascended the mountains, and those who had were chiefly of unsound mind. Ideas have altered since then, and the climber nowadays has to be a healthy-minded mortal of at least ordinary intelligence; although a writer in Outing declares that the secret is successful and skilful use of the feet.

The tyro at mountain-climbing proclaims himself at once by his inability to make progress where handholds are scarce. The hands should, as a rule, be used only as anchors, and the upward progress made by simply stepping upward on any ledges that are available. It is a very common occurrence in the Alps to meet a party that includes an incapable amateur who has lost all power in his arms, and has actually to be pushed, dangled and almost carried down the rocks because his arms have given out through lack of knowledge in using them.

Last year on Mont Blanc I witnessed a curious accident which illustrates the consequences of carelessness. We were following downward behind a party composed of two guides and a stout German climber who objected to having the rope tied about his waist.

At one point we were dismayed to see the amateur vanish through the apparently level surface of the snow, leaving the empty loop of the rope dangling down the hole.

We rushed to the edge of the crevasse, and a glance down into its black, icy depths showed the serious nature of the accident. The crevasse was fully 200 feet deep, and our ropes were of no use for a rescue; besides, as no answer came to our calls, we decided that the unfortunate climber had paid the penalty of his foolishness.

Some of us ran down to the Grands-Mulets and brought up a number of guides carrying a long, strong rope and the wherewithal to carry the body down to the valley.

We lowered the guide into the depths of the glacier, and judge of our surprise when we heard voices far below. Our wonder was still further increased when the guide came up and said that the stout German was sitting at the bottom of the crevasse, smoking a pipe. Luckily, he had fallen on a bed of soft snow, and his only serious damage was a broken leg.

He absolutely refused to be pulled up until a bargain had been struck as to the cost of the rescue.

SAVED BY A BABY.

In 1895 the difficulties between the Chinese and Japanese made the lot of missionaries in China extremely dangerous. They recognized the serious consequences of a general uprising of the Chinese. In "The Tragedy of Peking" there is a letter from an American woman telling how a party of Chinese soldiers were checked when they came rushing toward her house:

"A week ago a great crowd of Chinese soldiers came to the compound, about fifteen rods from her. They caused great disturbance among the Chinese servants and others. The racket about the place was something terrible."

Mr. Roberts did what he could to keep them quiet. Dr. Noble soon came, and they two worked all the afternoon, trying to entertain these men by answering their questions and showing them round. They broke into the cellar, but did not break into the houses, although they pushed on the doors and wanted to get in badly; but the gentlemen told them there was only a woman to go in. It was not proper for them to go in. To this they finally agreed, for the Chinese are very particular about such things.

I soon saw them coming toward the house like a lot of hounds on the track of some prey. They came to the windows and began looking in, but did not try the doors.

I saw some faces at one window which did not look very bad, so I sat down at the window with Baby Paul. He immediately reached out his little arms to them, and laughed, delighted to see so many faces. They began to smile and ask questions. I asked them where they were from and the answered me. They thought Paul would be cold, dressed in white. So I showed them that he had flannel on under, et cetera, and they seemed satisfied.

They finally left. You can imagine my relief.

CONQUERING A GRIZZLY.

Nearly all old Californians, says the author of "Early Days in California," have heard of "Mountain Charley," who lived in the Santa Cruz mountains, where he hunted bear and deer. Of his adventures, many of which were remarkable, there is none stranger than his fight with a grizzly.

One morning he started out with his gun. He had gone but a short distance when he found himself face to face with a grizzly. The bear was sitting on his haunches reaching for acorns when Charley came upon him. The hunter tried to bring his rifle up, but being at such close quarters, the bear disarmed him by striking the weapon with its paw and knocking the weapon out of his hands. At the same time he embraced Charley.

Both fell to the ground. Being on a hillside, they rolled over and over until they reached the ravine below, when the bear loosened its hold, yet did not seem inclined to give up the fight.

Charley realized that his only chance was to "wind" the bear by striking him with his fist over the heart. He landed the blow as near the region as possible. He struck first with one fist and then with the other in rapid succession when he found the bear weakening.

By this time they were close to the embankment of the creek. The bear had lost no time in getting in his scratches and bites. It had made one wound over the hunter's forehead and down the cheek to the bone, and had torn one of his eyes from the socket. It had also fastened its teeth in the man's left arm, and made an ugly wound there.

With a desperate lunge Charley shoved the bear over the embankment into the water. Then, too weak to stand, he fell exhausted upon the ground. The bear was apparently in the same condition. It waded to the opposite bank and lay down.

At last the bear rose to its feet and walked up the stream, frequently stopping and looking back, as if hesitating whether or not to renew the fight. Going at a slow pace, it finally disappeared.

When Mountain Charley thought he could move with safety, he crawled to the stream and drank a little water, then washed the blood from his face, pushed the eye back into the socket, and crawled to his home. He was taken to San Jose for medical treatment. The bones of one arm were broken. Several months passed before he recovered. His eye was not destroyed, but his face was so disfigured that his friends hardly knew him. Not discouraged by this terrible experience, however, he continued to hunt until game became scarce.

SLEEPING WITH SNAKES.

My present box always sleeps in my bed round my feet. He is perfectly clean, lies still and very seldom disturbs me; occasionally he crawls to my face to lick it. I frequently take a python to bed, but at present she is timid, and if she cannot find my feet crawls out of the bed and curls herself on the floor.

I do not myself believe that any python or boa is savage, but they are dreadfully timid, especially from the ill-treatment they receive when first caught and the misery and terror they endure on the voyage. There is another thing. They have no eyelids, and being suddenly uncovered and dragged forth to the light suffer from the glare very acutely. It is best, therefore, to hide their heads in your hand or under your coat. Handle them often and give them water, pressing their heads gently into it.

I feed my boas frequently from my hand, but the last time I offered a python a guinea pig the prey escaped and the python took in the whole of my hand instead. He soon discovered his mistake and was greatly distressed, rubbed his head against my hand and seemed to fear some sort of punishment.

Since that time I have had great difficulty in persuading him to eat unless I nurse him or take him to bed, when he will lie the whole night with his head in my hand.—From a letter by Dr. Mann, in "My Strange Pets," by Richard Bell.

Mirrors in Photography.

In this age of publicity, when many sort of women are glad to furnish photographs for use in print, it is little wonder they are anxious to look their prettiest when being "taken." One of the latest European fads is to pose with a hand glass. French women say "that fascinating expression" is obtained only by such a method, and the idea is being received well by photographers throughout Europe. Sometimes the mirror is held for fifteen or twenty minutes before the woman is satisfied that others will see her as she sees herself. When the right expression does come she drops the mirror, and the photographer does the rest.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS

BLISTERING IN LINEN.

To prevent blistering in linen, which is almost always due to bad starching, but occasionally to ironing the articles when too wet, each article must be well starched through, and when about to iron it, it must be dampened evenly, but not wet. Collars and cuffs that have to be turned down should be fixed in the proper shape immediately after each one is ironed, for then the starch is still flexible.

SELECTING AND COOKING FISH.

Fish should enter into the diet of both healthy people and invalids. Its chief disadvantage for folks in good health is that it is not satisfying. This is largely owing to the great amount of water that it contains.

It is an agreeable change from meat. Any white fish is easily digested. To be really good and wholesome fish should not only be strictly fresh, but in season. It should no more be eaten out of season than game, says the Boston Traveler.

Care should be taken also that the fish is mature, so that the flavor of the meat may be at its best. After spawning it makes a very poor diet. The flesh is then soft and of a bluish color and after it is cooked it has not the firmness that characterizes good fish. Fish must be perfectly fresh, otherwise serious results may follow after eating it. It deteriorates more quickly than most food and consequently the first essential is freshness. If it is at all "woolly" its flavor is gone and the meat is insipid.

CLEANING FEATHERS.

Prepare sufficient lime water for the quantity of feathers you have to clean, in the following manner: Mix thoroughly one pound of quick lime in each gallon of water required and let it stand until all the undissolved lime is precipitated as a fine powder to the bottom of the tub or pan, whereupon pour off the clear liquor for use.

Now, having put the feathers in a clean tub, pour the lime water on them and stir them well in it until they all sink to the bottom, by which time there should be enough lime water to cover them to a depth of three inches. Let them stand in this three or four days, then take them out, drain them in a sieve, and afterwards wash and rinse them well in clean water. Dry them on nets having about the same mesh as a cabbage net; shake the net occasionally and those feathers that are dry will fall through. When they are all dry, beat them well to get rid of the dust.

Orange Punch—Boil one pound of sugar and one pint of water with the grated yellow rind of one orange for five minutes. Take from the fire and strain; add the juice of three oranges and two lemons and set aside to cool. When ready to use it, add a pint of shaved ice and a quart of water.

Pineapple Ice Cream—Three pints of cream, one pint milk, two ripe pineapples; with two pounds of sugar; peel and slice the pineapples, cover them with sugar and let stand about three hours; then chop the fruit into the syrup formed and strain through a fine sieve; beat into the cream and freeze. Some of the fruit can be cut in small pieces and stirred into the cream. Peach ice cream is made in the same way.

Mushrooms a la Provencale—This recipe has just been sent me by a friend who is spending a year in an old French chateau studying French customs. "The Provencale cooks," she says, "first blanch the mushrooms in boiling water, to which a teaspoonful of vinegar has been added. Remove and let them lie for an hour in a bath of oil, salt, pepper and a pinch of garlic. Then take out the mushrooms and set the saucepan over the fire to heat the oil. When very hot add the mushrooms with a little minced parsley. Toss the mushrooms while cooking, then take up, drain, squeeze over them the juice of a lemon and serve with quarters of lemon, garnishing the dish on which they are served."—New York Evening Telegram.

Virginia Barbecued Ham—Cut raw ham in thin slices and soak in scalding water one-half hour. Take them out and lay them in a frying pan. Pepper each slice and spread on one-fourth teaspoonful of made mustard. Fry in vinegar, one-half teaspoonful to each slice, turning often. A delicious breakfast dish with pork is scrapple. Take the head, heart and any lean scraps of pork and boil until the flesh slips from the bones. Remove all fat, gristle and bones, and chop fine. When cold remove the fat from the surface of the liquor in which the meat was boiled and return to the fire. As soon as it boils put on the chopped meat and pepper and salt to taste. Allow it to come to a boil again and thicken with cornmeal, letting the meal slip through the fingers slowly to prevent lumps. Cook an hour, stirring very often, and then push back on the stove to boil gently for another hour. Mold in a shallow, square pan, and when cold fry in slices, the same as you do cold mush.

THE MERRY SIDE OF LIFE

GUESSING.
A man will struggle hard and long to gain what he esteems success. He wins it; feels that he was wrong. And starts in on another guess.
—Boston Courier.

MONEY IN IT.
Knicker—"Strange they didn't name the baby after its rich uncle."
Bocker—"No; he looked at it, and said he'd give them $10,000 not to."
—Harper's Bazar.

A SURE CURE.
Puffenbarger—"I'd give anything to know how you managed to reduce your weight."
Thinow—"I have made it impossible to get much to eat, by joining an Anti-Tipping Society."—Brooklyn Life.

IN HONOR BOUND.
"I ain't dirty by choice, ma'am," the hobo explained. "I'm bound by honor. I wrote a testimonial for a soapmaker once an' promised ter use no other."
"Well, why don't you use that?" demanded Mrs. Goodley.
"Because, ma'am, dat firm failed in 1887."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A MAIDEN PHILOSOPHER.
"I suppose you will marry when you grow up?" said the visitor, pleasantly.
"No," replied the thoughtful little girl, innocently. "Mamma says papa is more care than the children, so I guess the care of my children will be enough for me without the care of a husband."—Chicago Journal.

A BAD BREAK.
"My husband could never write any poetry unless he was smoking," said the one in black.
"I believe your husband is dead," said the man, with a far-off look.
"Yes, he is."
"Do you suppose he is writing any poetry now?"—Yonkers Statesman.

OLD FRIENDS.
The Wife—"What luck?"
The Husband (wearily)—"None whatever."
The Wife—"Were there no servants in the intelligence office?"
The Husband (sadly)—"Lots of them, but they had all worked for us before."—Woman's Home Companion.

FRENZIED FINANCE.

"I made money to-day all right. I sold our piano for $150."
"Made money?—Why, you told me it cost you $350."
"I know, but I never paid for it."—New York Evening Mail.

THE CHUGS.
Mrs. Chugwater—"This paper says the passengers escaped on a raft. How could they make a raft at sea?"
Mr. Chugwater—"They could use the ship's log, couldn't they? Why don't you use your own reasoning faculties once in a while?"—Chicago Tribune.

THE CENSURER.
"I heard you swearing at an awful rate this morning. What was the matter?" said the first flat dweller.
"Why, I was mad at that coal man for swearing so at the poor horse he was trying to back into the court!" explained the other, with flashing eyes. "It was awful!"—Detroit Free Press.

CIRCULATED SOME.
"Have you a library in your town?" asked the New York man.
"Oh, yes," replied the Westerner.
"A circulating one?"
"Well, it wasn't intended for that sort of a library, but we had two or three cyclones on our way that circulated it considerably."—Yonkers Statesman.

MORE TO THE POINT.
"Ef yer real interested," said Deacon Sklauer, "I'll tell ye what I want fur that horse."
"Oh, I wouldn't be interested in knowin' that," replied Farmer Shrupe.
"No?"
"No; but I wouldn't mind knowin' what ye'd take."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

AS REVISED.
"A horse! A horse!" exclaimed King Richard. "My kingdom for a horse!"
"There isn't one in the building, your Majesty," said one of the sopes behind the scenes in a husky, agonized, stage whisper. "Society is using all of 'em for a horse show!"
Realizing his mistake, he called for an automobile, but it was too late. A moment more and Richmond was upon him.—Chicago Tribune.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

HATPIN HOLDERS.

In these days of many hatpins the hatpin holder has become a necessary adjunct to the well-appointed bureau. They are made now as one of the toilet set, comprising brush, comb, mirror, powder box, tray, etc., or may be had separately in very pretty designs. An ingenious substitute for the silver holder, and one in reach of every girl, is a tall glass bottle with a mouth wide enough to hold several pins comfortably. Nearly everybody has a pretty bottle or two put away, and one of these, with a bow on the neck or a little picture pasted on the side, will hold the hatpins all right until Christmas, when one of the new silver holders will probably appear.

A WOMAN, TOO.

A young woman who was spending the evening with the family of Lord Coleridge, the eminent English jurist, was about to start for her home at 10 o'clock when he offered to accompany her. She, with the respect due to his age, and with the fearlessness of youth, due to ignorance of the dangers surrounding young women, said: "I thank you, but I do not want to trouble you. Cannot the maid accompany me?" His answer showed the respect in which he held all women. He said: "My dear, the maid is a woman also." If all men were as truly courteous there would be no complaint on the part of women that they do not receive the treatment they should receive from the opposite sex.—New York Tribune.

OBSERVE HOME ANNIVERSARIES.

The happiest households are that that do not let die out the sentiment connected with various anniversaries. Although gift-giving or recognition of such events in a suitable way may be out of the question owing to the straitened circumstances of those "within the gates," there can yet be a little air of festivity when mother's or father's birthday comes round, or some wedding anniversary is to be celebrated. An extra dish, a little bunch of flowers, or some special music prepared for the occasion, will show the kindly spirit and the loving remembrance that count for more than the money value of any gift. As the children grow up, if these festivals are encouraged, they will have much to look forward to and much more to remember in the years to come when they go out to do battle with the world and find that sentiment is crushed under foot and affection is regarded only as a side issue.

CHILDREN'S PARTY SUPPERS.

The most charming thing about any meal is a surprise connected with it, and in this supper there are several of a simple character, easily prepared and intended for the smallest children: Cream broth in cups with whipped cream.

Animal crackers.
Creamed chicken; rolled sandwiches. Small cups of cocoa.

Paper roses with plain ice cream concocted in them; little cakes.
Put the chicken into small square boxes and covers and glue a tiny downy chicken on the cover of each. Serve the sandwiches tied with ribbons, and the cocoa in little after-dinner coffee-cups with little spoons. Get some large paper roses and remove the centres, fitting a little paper cup in each, and laying the flat centre on again when it is served; pass the plates with the little lighted cakes with this.
—Harper's Bazar.

SAVE TISSUE PAPER.

The tissue paper in which parcels are wrapped should never be thrown away, but smoothed out and laid away in a drawer for future use.

A small pad of tissue paper sprinkled with methylated spirit will give a brilliant polish to mirrors, picture glasses and crystal. The pad, used without the spirit, is excellent for burnishing steel, rubbing grease spots off furniture, polishing silver, etc.

For packing glass, china and ornaments a roll of tissue paper is invaluable, says Home Notes.

When packing glass a wish of tissue paper should be twisted around all upstanding ends of ribbon, ospreys and wings to prevent crushing. Dress and blouse sleeves should be stuffed with soft paper, and a sheet of it placed between the folds.

Silk handkerchiefs, ribbons and lace should all be ironed between a layer of tissue paper, and the latter is a fine polish for steel buckles and hatpins.

DRESS FOR THEMSELVES.

Women do not dress to attract the admiration of men; vanity, I am afraid, is the author of this suggestion, writes a correspondent of the London Daily News. Neither is it to excite the envy of women. Why do men everywhere fall so easily into this mean estimate of our sex?

God has planted, I believe, a true instinct into all true women's natures—perhaps partly on account, it may be, of their very subtle and universal influence as mother, wife, sister, friend—not only to be attractive, but to appear so.

We could count numberless instances to support this theory. The world is dark and cold enough, our eyes refuse to be satisfied with garments of black and brown, or even chocolate or coffee colored; these are quite as, and more, expensive than the sweet, fresh tulle made lovely by rainbow-tinted flowers and ribbons that rejoice the eye of the true artist.

Surely it was not as a coquette to inspire the admiration of men that the woman whose price was above all rubies whose husband trusted in her, and in whose tongue was the law of kindness, clothed herself in coverings of tapestry, silk and purple. I think rather her raiment matched the innate dignity and beauty of her character. And when I see the pretty garments around me I like to feel that they are most often the outcome of sunny, womanly natures, whose desire is to please and to be pleased.—Manchester Union.

A WOMAN PATENT ATTORNEY.

The experience of Miss Florence King, of Chicago, patent attorney, shows that the "self-made woman" has arrived along with the "self-made man," of whom America has long been proud. She handles the most intricate inventions and complicated cases, and practices in the Supreme Court of the United States. She became famous when she won the case of Mrs. Hamilton Rogers against a great corporation, a case which men attorneys had repeatedly refused to touch as hopeless. She was born in a log cabin, left an orphan at five, went to district school, earned her first money in the kitchen at $1.25 a week, worked her own way through college, started business life as a stenographer, studied law, specialized in patent law, and after various other successes was admitted to the Supreme Court in 1903. She took a course in mechanical and electrical engineering at Armour Institute, and can pass, it is said, expert opinion on mechanical inventions before presenting them at the Patent Office.

STYLES IN NECKWEAR.

Scarfs of lace and printed chiffon for evening wear are so closely allied to neckwear that they must be mentioned with it and the newest come in frilled and pleated effects that are extremely pretty. Crepe de Chine is employed for the making of some dainty stocks and ties, both in white and colors, and medallions and frills of lace lend a touch of ornamentation. In pastel colorings these collars are dainty and charming. In tailored neckwear a fancy is observable for long tab ends, and whether of wash material or of silk this elongated effect is evidenced. Taffeta embroidered in colors and in black and white designs is a favored material for these fancy tailored stocks, and then there are the handkerchief ties in bright tints and Oriental colorings which are exceedingly smart for autumn or winter wear with a plain shirt waist, whether of linen or heavier fabric. The trim little turnover collar with embroidered edge and worn with a narrow silk or satin tie is as much in style as ever. There is a neat air about this collar that is very fetching. Of course, the linen collar for wear with strictly tailored waists is never entirely out of fashion, and it is not likely to be while the vogue for the shirt waist continues. In referring to neckwear, the scrim collar and cuff sets must be included, for they are very appropriate and becoming with waists of mohair, Henrietta, dannel and the like, especially in plain colors, the cross stitch decoration in bright blue, green or less vivid hues giving the required note of color. Few women are indifferent to neckwear displays, and this season they are certain not to be for the array in the shops is fascinating to a degree.—Brooklyn Eagle.

-Pretty-Things-to-Wear-

Tiny toques go well with small features unless their owner is tall.

For a small nose, wear a hat under the medium size, small flowers.

If the forehead is high keep it in shadow. Avoid a hat that rolls up.

If the features are irregular, a hat whose brim is crushed in here and there, is usually becoming.

Small hats were not frequent in the collections from which was obtained the information of present purpose.

Those no longer young look best in oval or round toques, with deep, not wide, brims. Soft rich colorings or black and white.

Collarettes of ostrich feathers are among the latest novelties. They are less expensive than the boas and quite as pretty. At either end they are finished with bows and long ends of ribbon and black velvet.

Women who find time hanging heavily on their hands may provide themselves with extremely pretty hatpins at very little cost. It is only necessary to buy the common pins, crush off the glass beads and replace them with Indian beads. The latter can be attached with sealing wax or solder.

A medium large hat, with medium wide, low, square crown, covered objectively with cloth surfaced with breast feathers of Impeyan pheasants, has the crown encircled by a folded band of mink velvet in tobacco brown, the band terminating in a bow at the left side, and the bow holding a pair of pheasant wings.

They say that the "baby Irish," which is to be worn so extravagantly, this winter for trimmings—yokes, cuffs, collars and chemisettes—is not made in Ireland at all, but in France. The French women, however, are not using their fingers for it, but simply employ the real Irish patterns on the baby Irish net, doing the whole on machines.
